REPORT

The Department of Computer Applications organized a vibrant book exhibition titled "Aksharakkoottu" as part of the Reading Week celebrations, aiming to promote the joy of reading and the richness of literature among students. Held in the college auditorium, the exhibition showcased a diverse collection of books spanning various genres, languages, and authors, including works of fiction, non-fiction, biographies, and academic texts. The event drew enthusiastic participation from students and faculty alike, fostering meaningful discussions around literature and reading habits. Special highlights included rare book displays, student reviews, and interactive sessions, making Aksharakkoottu a successful and inspiring initiative that reinforced the importance of reading in academic and personal growth.The Department extends heartfelt thanks to all the participants and contributors who made this event memorable.
