Department of History and Political, as part of the Reading Week celebration, organized an outreach program "Aksharappaythu" to promote the culture of reading among school students on 24 June 2025 as part of METS.

A team consisting of three students and one faculty member from the department visited SNUP School, Athaloor. The primary objective of the visit was to install a Little Library at the school, aiming to nurture reading habits among young learners. As part of this initiative, the team donated 100 books to the school. The collection included a diverse range of titles suitable for various age groups, covering fiction, non-fiction, biographies, and educational resources.

During the visit, the students from Mercy College worked in the school's library and actively helped arrange and organize the donated books on the shelves. This hands-on support ensured that the Little Library was ready for use and accessible to the students.

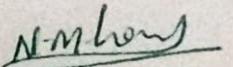

The staff and students of SNUP School warmly welcomed the initiative and expressed their sincere appreciation for the thoughtful contribution. The visit concluded with the successful setup of the Little Library.
